

Why is it important to stay connected with fellow believers?

With all the diverse churches and denominations, Psalm 133 may need to carry more weight than it ever has. Why is the church not unified? How do we become part of the solution and not part of the problem?

And let us consider how to stir up one another to love and good works, not neglecting to meet together, as is the habit of some, but encouraging one another, and all the more as you see the day drawing near.
Hebrews 10: 24-25(ESV)

We should put into practice loving and living in harmony with our fellow believers. Psalm 133. Why is this idea so important to growing faith?

When we grow in our faith we are enabled to reach out even further and maybe begin a conversation with others out in the world.

It is not always easy to get along, even with fellow believers. What are some reasons we can give for not feeling unified even with fellow church goers?

What needs to change in us so that we can be in unity?

How can we bridge the gap and become more “together”?

How much better to encourage one another, get to know and overlook small differences. We are all unique individuals with different outlooks on life. Who knows, maybe we can grow in wisdom and knowledge by listening and encouraging our fellow believers.

Take a look at 1 Corinthians 12. As you consider dwelling in unity, what are attitudes you will need to change? What needs to change about the way you view yourself, or others, or the concept of the Church as the Body of Christ?
